

Rhythms of Grace Through Storytelling

A few things to remember

Important Points

Know your story: The more you know your story, the less nervous you will be

Believe in your story: Let your passion and humanity show through

Know your audience: Tailor your story/talk/sermon to the audience

Practice, practice, practice: Feel comfortable with your story

Content

- ⇒ Know what you want to achieve
- ⇒ Humor should be appropriate to the topic, audience and situation.
(If you aren't comfortable with humor, don't use it.)
- ⇒ If you choose visuals or props, be sure they reinforce and don't distract from your point
- ⇒ If you want to tap into the emotional side of your audience, stay away from statistics
- ⇒ Identify the "light bulb" moment in your story
- ⇒ Make the ending memorable

Selected Print Resources

A Beginners Guide to Storytelling— National Storytelling Network

Storytelling: Imagination and Faith— William J Bausch

The Art of Storytelling— John Walsh

Improving Your Storytelling— Doug Lipman

The Story Factor— Annette Simmons

Ted Talks— Chris Anderson

The Story Telling Animal— Jonathan Gottschall

William (Bill) Wildey, Palms Presbyterian Church, Jacksonville Beach, FL

bill.wildey@palmschurch.org, wiliam.wildey@gmail.com